

WEIGHTING:

The index is market-value weighted. Movements in the prices of stocks with higher market capitalization have a greater effect on the index than companies with smaller market caps.

VERSION:

The index is quoted as a price return index. A price return index version does not account for dividends. It only captures the changes in the prices of the index components.

SELECTION:

Although the component companies are selected by a committee there are a number of criteria used.

1. Market capitalization of between US$1 million and US$500 million
2. Listed on the TXV-V, ASX, OTCBB
3. Are exploring for, or producing lithium properties as primary business
4. Company's stock has not been unavailable for trading for more than 10 business days in past 52 weeks.

INDEX MAINTENANCE:

Companies are continually reviewed for possible inclusion and exclusion from the index. Addition or deletion of members of the index is made the end of every month.
